Jason Silberberg is a partner in Frier Levitt's Healthcare Litigation section and co-chairs the firm's value-based care litigation group.

Jason has experience handling a wide range of healthcare and life sciences litigation and regulatory matters affecting clients in various sectors, but currently focuses his practice on helping clients in the value-based care space with strategic litigation and pre-litigation-based solutions to commercial disputes. Jason counsels accountable care organizations (ACOs), patient-centered medical homes, clinically integrated networks (CINs), and healthcare data analytics vendors in resolving conflicts with payers, including Medicare Advantage Organizations and Managed Medicaid plans. Jason also regularly represents clients in False Claims Act matters and provider-agency disputes under state and federal Administrative Procedure Acts.

Prior to joining Frier Levitt as an associate in 2014, Jason worked for several years as a Deputy Attorney General in the New Jersey Attorney General's Office, Banking & Insurance Section, where he civilly prosecuted healthcare providers, insurance producers, and insurance carriers for violations of the state Fraud and Producer Acts. He also has authored several amicus curiae briefs on novel questions of law concerning the interpretation of healthcare and insurance related statutes.
